

Waterfalls in Winter

By Pat Diane Buckner

Sky summer blue
Caught with ice winter white
By a cascade of freezing
One star-singing night.
A deep, indrawn breath
In awe of the cold
Until spring warms to free them
From the pattern they hold.