

Show and tell

A bully was picking on a boy I didn't know. I told the bully that he should be nice. The bully made fun of me. Then the boy I had stood up for helped me. He said that we should all be friends. I felt good that we could help each other.

I was the fastest runner in my class when we were timed for the mile run. I noticed one girl who was having a hard time running, so as soon as I finished, I cheered her on. It made me feel good inside to encourage her.

Josh C., age 8, California, USA

I try to pray to Heavenly Father for anyone who is sad that they will be happy.

Ryan D., age 7, Somerset, England

At school we did state reports. My friend reported on Utah and said that it was first settled by Mormons. I said I was a Mormon and shared my beliefs with my friends at school, which made me happy!
