DEAR FRIENDS,

Happy New Year! When you look into the sky at night, what do you see? Do you see a sky full of stars? Or just a few bright stars? Jesus asked each of us to let our light shine. This year we you can tell us how you do that! Read pages 2-3 and send us your star and story. We love you so much.

Keep shining!

Kindness Challenge

I took the "kindness challenge" (Feb. 2017) when I met a new boy in Primary named Mason. I learned new things about him and invited him to come over to play. The best part was that he liked coming to church and he wants to come again!

Let Your Light SHINE

Each of us came to earth with the Light of Christ. It is up to us to keep our light burning brightly for others to see and follow. One of the best ways to keep the faith we need is to study the scriptures and to pray.

As you keep the flame of testimony burning brightly, you will become a signal light of righteousness for all to see. The Savior said, “Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven” (Matthew 5:16).

Our opportunities to shine are limitless. They surround us each day. As we follow the example of the Savior, we will be a light in the lives of those around us—whether they be our own family members, our friends, or total strangers.

We can be a light to the world. Just as turning on a light switch in a dark room will fill the room with light, being an example of righteousness can help light up an increasingly dark world.

My friends, we can be, as the Apostle Paul said, “an example of the believers” (1 Timothy 4:12). We can always be known as followers of Christ and become “as lights in the world” (Philippians 2:15). ♦

(Based on a true story)

“By small and simple things are great things brought to pass” (Alma 37:6).

Matthew climbed into bed. He pulled a fluffy blanket up to his chin. “Is Adam coming home from the hospital tomorrow?” he asked. Matthew hadn’t seen his younger brother since Adam broke his leg and went to the hospital to get a special cast.

“Yes!” Mom said. She tucked the blanket around Matthew. “He’ll need our help. He won’t be able to move around too much because of his cast.”

“It goes all the way around his waist. And it covers all of his broken leg and half of his other leg.”

“Whoa,” Matthew said. “That sounds bad.”

“It will be pretty hard for him.” Mom turned off the light. “But if we look for small and simple ways to serve him, we can help him be happy.”

Matthew was tired, but he couldn’t go to sleep. He kept thinking about all the things Adam couldn’t do in his cast. He won’t be able to play tag or hide-and-seek. Someone will have to carry him to his bed and the couch. He finally fell asleep thinking of ways he could try to help.

After school the next day, Matthew ran home from the bus stop. “Welcome home, little buddy!” Matthew yelled as he ran inside.

Adam was sitting on the couch in the family room. Matthew gave him a big hug. Adam’s cast was bright green, and it rubbed against Matthew’s arms. It was hard and scratchy.

Matthew felt sad for his brother. The cast was so big! “So . . . do you want to play with me?” Matthew asked. Adam frowned and looked down at his cast. “I can’t.” “Sure you can! I’ll be right back.” Matthew gathered up Adam’s favorite games and toys and took them to the family room. He sat on the couch next to Adam. “We can play cars or a board game. Then maybe Dad can get your wheelchair and we can all go for a walk before dinner.”

“OK!” Adam smiled wide. “And we can play with this!” He pulled a brown teddy bear from underneath his blanket. “His name is Ruff. I got him at the hospital.”

“Awesome!” Matthew grabbed a bucket of cars. Together they turned the couch into a racetrack with giant pillow mountains and a bear cave for Ruff. They had lots of fun!

Matthew did lots of little things to help his brother. When the cast was making Adam uncomfortable, Matthew helped him move around. When Adam asked for a snack, he brought graham crackers and milk to share. They were playing a board game when Mom walked in the room.

“Yeah!” Adam smiled. “This is the best game day ever!”

Mom hugged Matthew. “Thanks,” she whispered.

“I thought about what you said last night, about the small and simple things,” Matthew said. Then he laughed. “But there’s just one problem.”

“My little buddy has turned into a turtle!”

They all looked at Adam’s big green cast. Adam laughed. “I am a big green turtle!” he said.

Mom hugged Adam. “You’re the cutest turtle I’ve ever seen.” ♦

Green Cast

Family Night FUN

Here's an idea for family home evening. What other ideas can you come up with?

Searching for Service

Read "Adam's Big Green Cast" on page 4 with your family. Then do this activity.

1. On slips of paper, write down examples of people who need help, like "Your neighbor is sick" or "Your friend is sad."
2. Have everyone leave while you hide the papers around the room.
3. Call everyone back, and let the search begin! When someone finds a card, have them say how they would help that person.
4. When all the papers are found, explain that when we look, we can find lots of ways to help!
5. Now think of one way you can be kind, write it on a star, and send it to the Friend! Go to page 3 to learn more.

Is there a topic you'd like to learn about with your family? Go to lessonhelps.lds.org to find stories, activities, and media.

Small and Simple S'mores

You can serve in small and simple ways. Make simple s'mores with your family by squishing chocolate and a marshmallow between two graham crackers. (Microwave the marshmallow for a few seconds to get it soft.) That's all it takes! Here are some other easy ideas:

- Instead of graham crackers, use pretzels or snack crackers.
- Add fruit, nut butter, or caramel.
- Make a s'mores snack mix with mini marshmallows, chocolate chips, and square-shaped cereal.
- Toss popcorn with melted butter, graham cracker crumbs, and mini marshmallows. Drizzle with melted chocolate.

MORE IDEAS

- Start your family history binder! (See page 18.)
- Do the first challenge together from the Old Testament Card (page 19).

“Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.”
—Matthew 5:16

Find It!

This year we're inviting you to send stars to the Friend to share how you're bringing light to others. Find all 12 stars, then see if you can also find the 8 members of a stargazing club. Hint: Think bright yellow!

“Be thou an example of the believers” (1 Timothy 4:12).

Marco looked at the sky. “I have to go home. It’s almost sunset.”

“But we haven’t finished our fort yet!” said Callie.

“Sorry!” Marco called out as he jogged toward the backyard gate. “I have to be home before the Sabbath!”

Callie sighed. There were great things about being Marco’s friend, and there were hard things. Well, mostly just one hard thing. The hard thing was that they didn’t have very much time to play together. Even though they were in the same grade at school, they weren’t in the same class. They didn’t have the same recess. Plus, they both spent the Sabbath with their families. In Marco’s church, the Sabbath was Saturday. It started at sunset on Friday night. For Callie, the Sabbath was Sunday.

Callie and Marco went to different churches. Could they be good friends?

AND FRIENDSHIP

By Kasey Tross
(Based on a true story)

And the good things? There were lots of them. One was that Callie never had to worry that Marco would swear, try to get her to do bad things, or watch things that weren't good. He and his family went to a different church, but they believed a lot of the same things Callie did. Like they believed in keeping the Sabbath day holy, even though they had it on a different day.

Callie set down her armful of sticks and went inside.

"Did Marco go home?" Mom asked.

"Yeah," Callie said, slumping into a kitchen chair. "We hardly ever get to play."

"Maybe you two can get together Friday. It's a school holiday," said Mom.

"OK," Callie said, cheering up. She would get everything ready so when Marco came over, they could start working on the fort right away.

During school later that week, Callie's teacher made an announcement. The whole third grade was going to watch a movie together.

"Yes!" Callie said. She put her lunch box into her backpack and went into the common area between the classrooms.

Everyone found a place to sit on the floor, and the teachers turned off the lights. Callie got excited as the movie began. It was about some boys building a fort in the woods, just like she was building a fort with Marco! If we ever finish it, she thought. She shook her head and focused back on the screen.

But as the movie went on, Callie noticed that some of the words in it weren't very nice. She started to feel more and more uncomfortable. She didn't know what to do.

Just then, she felt a tap on her shoulder. It was Marco! He had crawled all the way through the crowd of students to talk to her.

"Callie, I don't think we should be watching this," he whispered. "I think we should go ask our teachers if we can read instead."

Callie breathed a sigh of relief. It felt good to know someone else felt like she did. "Yeah. I don't like this movie either."

She and Marco stood up and tiptoed around their classmates until they reached their teachers. Marco went to his teacher, and Callie went to hers. She asked if she could read a book instead of watching the movie, and her teacher said yes.

As Callie went into her classroom to read, she saw Marco doing the same thing. He gave her a thumbs-up and a smile. Callie smiled back. Having a true friend was even better than having a finished fort. ♦

Sharing Snacks and Smiles

We're
Sam and

and we try to SHINE
OUR LIGHT by sharing with others!

How Could We Help?

Where we live, in Florida, USA, we see lots of people who are homeless. We wondered how we could help them. Jesus fed people who were hungry, and everyone needs to eat! So we decided to make emergency snack kits.

Buying Supplies

Our friend Joa helped us shop for supplies at the dollar store.

Making the Kits

We put granola bars, bread sticks with cheese, and other yummy snacks in our kits. Sam even tried one!

Awesome!

Sharing our kits made us smile. Some people said, "Thank you!" and "Awesome!"

Lots More Kits

Our mom put our project on a website from the Church called JustServe.org so other people could make snack kits too. The young adult branch made 100 more snack kits for our local homeless shelter. The shelter used them to invite people to sign up for a program to help them get homes. That made us really happy!

HOW CAN YOU SHINE?

It's easy to find a service project to do with your family.

A FRIEND FOR MR. MAURICE

By Ray Goldrup and Maryssa Dennis

(Based on a true story)

Later ...

Jesus would be nice to Mr. Maurice. Maybe I can try

I want to help him... But what if he gets mad?

Um... do you need some help?

Oh. Thank you. I'm planting my wife's favorite flowers. You could help bring the rest from the garage.

Cool! I love trains.

If you want, we can try to get it running later.

How's it going?

Great! Mr. Maurice showed me his electric train. We're going to fix it later.

Later that day ...

How about we build the track tomorrow?

Whoa!

Want to give it a try?

You know... Mr. Maurice isn't so hard to love after all.

Jehovah Helped Create the Earth

Before we came to earth, we lived with our Heavenly Parents as spirit children. Heavenly Father's oldest son was named Jehovah. That's what Jesus Christ was called before He was born on earth. He helped Heavenly Father create the earth and plants and animals. They made this beautiful world as a place where we can learn and grow. We are so grateful for this planet Heavenly Father and Jehovah created for us!

Am I a Child of God?

By Chloe D., age 14, Idaho, USA

Sundays were always the same since I came to my new adoptive family when I was younger. Mom did my hair, and I got to wear a pretty dress. Then Mom made sure everyone was ready for church. I loved going to church! My teachers were nice, and the kids in my class were friendly. I loved to learn about Heavenly Father and Jesus. Most of all, I loved the music. Singing songs always made me feel happy.

But one Sunday we sang a song I hadn't heard before. As the other children sang, "I am a child of God, and He has sent me here, has given me an earthly home with parents kind and dear," I felt sad. My first parents hurt me and my sisters. I started to think that maybe I wasn't a child of God.

After church I ran to Mom and asked, "Mom, am I a child of God?"

Mom pulled me into her arms and told me that I've always been a child of God and that He loves me very much.

With tears running down my face, I asked, "Then why wasn't I born to parents kind and dear?" Mom said she didn't know why, but that she and Dad loved me and were glad I was in their family. That made me feel warm and happy inside. I knew what Mom said was true.

Now I love to sing "I Am a Child of God." I am grateful for my new parents who are kind and dear, and I know that everyone is a child of God. ◆

(Based on a true story)

"I love to read the holy scriptures, and, ev'ry time I do, I feel the Spirit start to grow within my heart—a testimony that they're true" (Children's Songbook, 109).

Lucia wiped away a tear. She didn't want the other kids to see. She left the school grounds and hurried toward home.

Lucia lived on a small, beautiful island. She was the only member of the Church at school. Everybody else went to the same church. They teased Lucia and wouldn't play with her because she was different.

That wasn't the only problem. Sometimes the teachers ignored Lucia when she raised her hand.

But today was the worst! Lucia thought. She kicked a pebble down the road. During class, the teacher read some Bible verses that Lucia didn't understand. They made it sound like Heavenly Father, Jesus, and the Holy Ghost were the same person. Then the teacher said there were some churches that didn't believe what the Bible taught. She looked straight at Lucia. Everybody in class laughed.

Lucia was confused. Weren't Heavenly Father, Jesus, and the Holy Ghost separate? What was going on?

Suddenly she had a happy thought. She could ask the missionaries! They came to Lucia's village every day. They'll know how to help! she thought.

When Lucia got home, she saw Sister Brown and Sister Ruiz. They were helping pump water up to a tank on the roof.

Lucia asked her question right away. "Why does the Bible say Heavenly Father and Jesus are the same person?"

An ANSWER

Sister Brown smiled. "That's a good question. After lunch let's look for some scriptures to help."

Lucia hardly tasted any of the yummy ropa vieja stew Mama had made. All she wanted was the answer!

Finally lunch was over. Lucia and the missionaries opened their scriptures. They read about Joseph Smith's vision. Then they read about Jesus's baptism. Both scriptures showed that Heavenly Father, Jesus, and the Holy Ghost were separate.

"So why do those other scriptures say they're the same?" asked Lucia.

Sister Brown started turning the pages. "Let's read in John 17:21-22. That's where Jesus prays to Heavenly Father about His Apostles."

They all took turns reading. In the scriptures, Jesus prayed that His Apostles "may be one" like He and Heavenly Father are one. Lucia counted three different times He said it.

"The Apostles couldn't all become the same person," Sister Ruiz said. "But they could become one in how they believed and acted. That's how Heavenly Father, Jesus, and the Holy Ghost are one."

Lucia began to feel warm inside. She knew it was the Holy Ghost. He was telling her that what Sister Ruiz said was true.

Heavenly Father and Jesus weren't the same person. But They were the same in what They said and did. And Lucia knew that They both loved her. ◆

Lucia was confused about what her teacher said. Who could help?

My Primary teacher helps me find answers to my questions in the scriptures. Once I asked, "Why don't big miracles happen today?" And he helped me find where it says that miracles still happen today. I love my questions being answered through the scriptures!

Moroni and the Mechanic

From an interview with Linda Davies

“And a little child shall lead them” (2 Nephi 30:12).

Many years ago, our family was driving home to São Paulo, Brazil, after visiting relatives. Just as we drove up a steep road, our car broke down.

We tried to restart the car for several minutes. But it wouldn't start. Car after car passed us. No one stopped to help.

Finally I told my family that we should pray. My six-year-old son, Moroni, said, “Don't worry, Daddy. I already prayed.”

“What did you pray for?” I asked.

“I prayed to Heavenly Father that the right person would come by to help us,” he said.

Soon two bright lights appeared behind our car. It was a tow truck. The driver was a mechanic.

“You're very lucky,” he said.

“I finished my work for the day and was heading home.”

He fixed our car. Then he followed us to make sure we got home safely.

I asked Moroni if he knew how special this experience was. “Of course,” he said. “Heavenly Father heard my prayer. So now I have my own testimony! I don't have to borrow it from you anymore, Dad.” My heart was touched by Moroni's faithful example.

Moroni is grown now, but I still remember his good example from when he was small. Even as a child, you can be an example to your family and friends. ♦

TIPS

Tip 1: Put an O in the boxes you know are TRUE and an X in the boxes you know are FALSE.

Tip 2: When you add an O, be sure to mark Xs on the rest of the row and column the O is on. (If that box is true, the rest have to be false.)

Tip 3: If all the boxes in a row are marked with an X except for one, you know that box is the answer! Put an O in it. Don't forget to mark Xs in the other direction!

Lucas and the Bully

By Eric B. Murdock

Church Magazines
(Based on a true story)

“Let us oft speak kind words to each other” (Hymns, no. 232).

“Oh no!” Here comes Pedro!” Everyone at school knew that Pedro was a bully. He was big, and he was mean! He called other kids names, took their lunches, and chased them around the school yard. No one wanted to be around him.

Pedro walked by Lucas and his friend Arthur. He called them “losers” and pushed Arthur.

Lucas was tired of Pedro being so mean. Without even thinking, he shouted, “Stop it, Pedro!”

Lucas couldn’t believe it. He’d just stood up to the biggest bully in school!

Pedro stormed up to Lucas and grabbed his shirt. “What did you say?” Lucas’s heart beat so fast it felt like it would jump out of his chest! “I’ll give you one warning,” Pedro said. “But you’d better watch out!” He shoved Lucas and walked away.

After that, Lucas did his best to avoid Pedro, but Pedro always found him. He kept Lucas off the swings, pushed him during dodgeball, tripped him in the cafeteria, and always said mean things.

One day Lucas and Arthur were playing with Arthur’s soccer ball. Pedro jumped out from behind a tree and grabbed it.

“Please give it back,” said Arthur.

“Who’s going to make me?” Pedro pushed Lucas and laughed.

Lucas could feel his stomach twist in knots. He was so angry! “You know what, Pedro?” Lucas said. “You’re the meanest kid I know! Nobody likes you.

Everyone wishes you’d go away!”

Pedro stopped laughing. Lucas felt great about what he said ... until he saw the look on Pedro’s face. Was he about to cry? Pedro quickly looked down and walked away.

Lucas instantly felt terrible. For the rest of the day, no matter how hard he tried, Lucas couldn’t get rid of the terrible feeling. That night, he tossed and turned in bed. He kept thinking about how sad Pedro had looked.

How could Pedro feel bad? Lucas thought. He doesn't care if he's mean to other kids. I had to say something, right? The more Lucas thought about it, the more he realized he was right to stand up for himself and his friend. But he was wrong to say those mean things.

Lucas knelt by his bed and asked Heavenly Father to forgive him. He told Heavenly Father that he never wanted to hurt anyone like that ever again. He wanted to be kind. When Lucas said “amen,” he knew what he had to do.

After lunch the next day, Lucas found Pedro standing against a wall by himself. Lucas was nervous. What would Pedro do? Lucas took a deep breath and walked over.

“Um, I’m sorry about yesterday.”

Pedro looked surprised. “You’re sorry?”

“Yes. I said some really mean things to you, and I shouldn’t have. I’m sorry.”

Pedro stared down at his shoes. “It’s OK.”

The bell rang. Lucas started walking back to class. He felt so much better. But there was one more thing he wanted to say. He turned back around.

“We could play soccer at recess tomorrow if you want.”

A small smile crossed Pedro’s face. “That sounds good.”

After that, things got better with Pedro. He was still a bully sometimes, but he wasn’t as mean. He even played with Lucas a few times at recess. And it was actually fun! At the end of the school year, Pedro told Lucas that he was moving away. Then he said something that really surprised Lucas.

“Thanks for being my friend,” Pedro said. “Even when I wasn’t nice.”

The warm feeling in Lucas’s heart let him know that being kind is always the right choice. ♦

My friend asked me why it matters if I keep the commandments. I'm not sure what to say.

-Wondering in Washington

Dear Wondering,

That's a good question. A lot of people think commandments just get in the way of having fun. But has your friend ever flown in an airplane? How do you think he or she would feel about flying with a pilot who didn't follow the rules of aviation? What about riding on a bus with a driver who didn't stop at red lights?

Heavenly Father's commandments are His loving way of helping us stay safe and return to Him.

He tells us not to smoke or use drugs so our bodies can stay healthy.

He tells us to be honest so others can trust us.

He tells us to keep the Sabbath day holy so we can keep our spirits strong and rest our bodies and minds.

When you think about it, every commandment is like a love letter from our Heavenly Father. Each one says, "I love you. I want you to be safe and happy. And I want you to come back to Me."

You can read about why Heavenly Father gives us commandments in Moses 1:39.

Thanks for writing!

Forgiving Demi

"Pray, He is there; Speak, He is list'ning"
(Children's Songbook, 12).

"Say cheese!"
photographer said.

The camera clicked, and a light flashed. It was class picture day for Mae's sixth-grade class. And she was in the center of the back row—again. That was where the tallest person in the class always stood. And she was always the tallest.

Mae didn't like how she had to look down when she talked to her friends. She didn't like how the boys looked up at her like she was a skyscraper. She didn't like how her friends wore size extra small and she wore size medium.

Every TV show she watched made it seem like girls were supposed to be small.

Mae's friends waited for her as she climbed down the bleachers.

Kayla waved for Mae to hurry. "It's finally lunchtime! I'm starving!" she said.

Mae smiled and headed to lunch with her friends. After eating their deliciously warm, cheesy pizza, they went outside.

"Let's go play kickball!" Kayla and Lexi said, running ahead.

Mae started to run after them when someone called, "Hey!"

She turned around. It was Demi and some of her friends.

"Good thing they put you in the back row for pictures," Demi said. "Otherwise you'd cover everyone up with your big head!"

Demi's friends laughed. Mae looked around for Kayla and Lexi. They were far away now.

"Leave me alone," Mae said.

"What's a giant like you going to do about it?" Demi smirked.

Mae felt tears roll down her cheeks as she ran past Demi and her friends. She ran until she got to the back corner of the field, where no one would see her crying.

Mae felt sick to her stomach, and her heart hurt. She thought of the words to her favorite Primary song: "Heavenly Father, are you really there? And do you hear and answer every child's prayer?"

Mae knew she could pray anytime, anywhere. She found a quiet spot behind a tree and knelt down to pray.

"Heavenly Father, what Demi said made me feel bad. Please help me feel better. I love Thee and thank Thee for the nice friends I do have."

Mae ended her prayer and continued to kneel quietly. She could hear kids playing across the field. She felt like someone had wrapped a blanket around her. It was like a warm hug!

Then she thought she heard the quietest voice in her mind say, "I love you, Mae."

She smiled. She knew that Heavenly Father was answering her prayer. Even though Demi's words still made her feel sad, she felt better.

Mae knew she was a child of God. There was nothing wrong with the way she looked! God loved her and cared about her. Maybe Demi wouldn't say mean things if she knew she was a child of God too, she thought.

Then Mae got an idea. She smiled and prayed again.

"Heavenly Father," she said, "help me forgive Demi and be kind to her. Please help her know that she is a child of God too. In the name of Jesus Christ, amen."

When Mae stood up, she didn't feel sad anymore. Sure, she was still the tallest and probably would be for a few years. But she knew that Heavenly Father loved her, and that was all that mattered. ◆

THE CHURCH OF
JESUS CHRIST
OF LATTER-DAY SAINTS

For Parents of Little Ones

As the Primary song says, “Saturday is a special day. It’s the day we get ready for Sunday” (Children’s Songbook, 196). Although we may not brush our clothes or shine our shoes, the song’s message rings true today—preparing on Saturday is the secret to a happier Sunday.

Here are some ideas for getting ready for the Sabbath with your young children:

- 1. Make a Saturday checklist with tasks little ones can help with. You could include pictures for taking a bath, finding shoes, and laying out clothes, for example. Letting them mark off completed tasks can make kids more eager to cooperate.
- 2. Create a Sabbath soundtrack. Playing special music signals that this day is different. You can find music at mormonchannel.org/radio or download free music at youth.lds.org.
- 3. Sunday can feel like a day of “can’t’s” to young children. Instead, talk about things you can and will do, like bake cookies, visit someone, act out scripture stories, or take a walk together.
- 4. Have everything ready ahead of time for a stress-free morning. Plan an easy breakfast, have the diaper bag ready to go (or even in the car!), and gather materials you may need for a lesson.

SCRIPTURE STORIES

The Creation

By Kim Webb Reid

Long before I can remember, God created a beautiful place for me to live.

When He began making the earth, He separated the day from the night. He made the sun, moon, and stars so I would always have light to guide me.

He created the sky, seas, and land. He covered the earth with all kinds of plants.

He created birds to fly in the sky, fish to swim in the seas, and animals to live on the land.

Whenever I see God's creations, I feel reverence and love for Him.
I'm grateful He made this earth for me. ◆

Heavenly

By Jane McBride

(Based on a true story)

Shannon was sitting in Primary. She was listening to Sister Tayson teach a lesson. The lesson was about following Jesus and Heavenly Father.

Sister Tayson put papers on the floor. The papers looked like stepping-stones. Each one was something that leads us closer to Heavenly Father. Sister Tayson read each one. They said:

Shannon frowned. She wasn't old enough to do those things. But then Sister Tayson put down another step.

"Can you read this stone?" Sister Tayson asked Shannon.

Shannon was just learning to read. She looked at the paper stone and read, "Pray." She thought about that.

Stepping-Stones

“I can do that!” she said. She felt happy.

Sister Tayson smiled. “You can do lots of good things!”

She asked other children to read stepping-stones. They said:

Shannon felt better as Sister Tayson showed each step. She knew she could follow those steps. She didn't have to wait to follow Jesus! She didn't have to wait to follow Heavenly Father! And when she was older, she could do all of the things on the stepping-stones. ◆
