Brain Wrestle!

Forget arm wrestling, it's time for a brain wrestle! For this exercise two different parts of your brain will battle to solve the problem on their own, but you'll need to make them work together. As fast as you can, try speaking out loud the COLOR of each word, not the word itself. (Example: for the first one, you would say "orange.")

YELLOW	GREEN	ORANGE
BLACK	RED	GREEN
PURPLE	BLACK	RED
ORANGE	PURPLE	BLUE
BLUE	ORANGE	GREEN
GREEN	YELLOW	BLUE
BLUE	BLACK	RED
RED	PURPLE	YELLOW
YELLOW	ORANGE	GREEN
GREEN	BLUE	RED
RED	GREEN	BLUE

BONUS: Try this activity with a friend. Time yourselves to see who can do it the fastest. For an added challenge, try alternating words.

An Ambush of ... What?

You know "a herd of cattle" and "a pride of lions"—but do you know what a group of stingrays is called? See if you can match the animals below with their crazy group names! (Answers on page 45.)

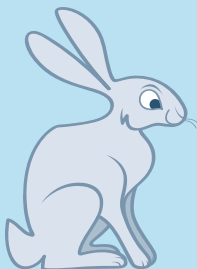

- | | |
|----------------|------------|
| 1 Wolves | A Caravan |
| 2 Bees | B Tower |
| 3 Giraffes | C Murder |
| 4 Wombats | D Congress |
| 5 Crows | E Ambush |
| 6 Tigers | F Wisdom |
| 7 Stingrays | G Pack |
| 8 Ferrets | H Fever |
| 9 Spiders | I Lounge |
| 10 Camels | J Swarm |
| 11 Lizards | K Cluster |
| 12 Salamanders | L Business |

OK, so in the matching game you learned that a group of camels is a caravan. What's a group of cureloms called? Come up with your own word for a group of cureloms and send it to us at newera@ldschurch.org.

And for all you artists out there, send us your best version of what you think a curelom might actually look like! (See Ether 9:19 for clues.) We might share your pictures and answers later.

A Riddle of Curelom Proportions

A Jaredite farmer brings a curelom, a rabbit, and a bag of curelom feed to a river. He's in a real pickle! The raft is only big enough for him to bring one thing across at a time. He can't leave the curelom alone with the feed, because then the feed would vanish.

Also, as any Jaredite knows, cureloms are deathly afraid of rabbits (at least, they could be). So he can't leave those two alone together or the curelom would run away. Luckily, rabbits think curelom feed is gross, so those two can be left alone, no problem.

How does he carry all three across the river? (Answer on page 45).
