

Sin

By Lisa J. South

*A little blue flower—
It didn't belong in my garden,
But it looked so appealing,
Smelled so sweet.
What could it hurt to leave it?*

*Pretty blue bells,
Deep green leaves
On dainty, curling stems
That slowly, silently
Choked the life out of my lilies.*