Reading at Sea

We love the stories; they’re super great. We’re 1, 3, 5; two are almost 8. We read every morning, rain or shine. Even on our ship, it’s mighty fine.

Hattie, Lily, Davis, Mason, and Taylor B., ages 1, 3, 5, and 7, Nevada, USA

Friend Notebook

I love the Friend so much that I decided to make a notebook filled with pictures and stories that I liked from the magazine. It made me feel good inside.

Dalton B., age 9, Alaska, USA

Strawberry Hearts

I made the strawberry hearts (Jan. 2017) for family home evening. Since it didn’t need the oven, I did most of it myself! They were delicious!

Emma B., age 9, California, USA

Fun to Color!

Thank you for the new paper that makes coloring fun and easier with markers!

Sophia B., age 10, Nebraska, USA

DEAR FRIENDS,

We may look different or have different beliefs, families, or cultures, but we are the same in one important way: we are all children of Heavenly Father, and He loves us very much! He wants us to respect one another.

This month has two messages from Church leaders about getting along with others—one on page 12 and one on page 20. Then read the story “Chameleons and New Friends” on page 22. Who can you be kind to today?

With respect and love,
The Friend

We have three classrooms of learning—the classroom at school, the classroom at church, and the classroom called home.

My elementary school music teacher was Miss Sharp. She helped her students love music and taught us to identify musical instruments and sounds.

Miss Burkhaus taught geography. She rolled down the maps of the world and pointed out the capital cities of nations, the features of each country, as well as the language and culture. Little did I dream that one day I would visit these lands and peoples.

The classroom at church is also important. In this classroom, children can hear and feel their teacher’s testimony and learn to love the scriptures.

Perhaps the most significant of all classrooms is the classroom of the home. It is in the home that we form our attitudes and our beliefs. If all children had loving parents, safe homes, and caring friends, it would be a wonderful world.

I love little children and know that Heavenly Father loves them too. ♦

Adapted from “Precious Children—A Gift from God,” Ensign, Nov. 1991, 67–70.

Bonnie’s Song

Bonnie took a deep breath and opened her mouth...
By Claudia G. Remington
(Based on a true story)

“The song of the righteous is a prayer unto me”
(D&C 25:12).

Bonnie loved to sing!

She sang when she woke up in the morning. She sang while she got ready for school. She sang in her bed at night. The only time she wasn’t singing was when she was eating or brushing her teeth. Not that she didn’t try!

Bonnie knew lots of songs—Church songs, school songs, songs from the radio, and songs she made up herself.

Not everyone liked to hear her sing all the time.

“Stop! I can’t stand it anymore!” her brother, Alex, said when he was grumpy.

“Go sing in the barn,” her sister, Susan, said one day.

“The cows will love it.”

Even her mom said, “It’s not polite to start singing in the middle of a conversation.”

But her dad said, “Bonnie is my little songbird. She will sing all the way to heaven.”

Where Bonnie really wanted to sing was with the Mormon Tabernacle Choir. She wanted to travel all over the world singing to people and making them happy. The only problem was that she was too young. So instead, she listened to the Tabernacle Choir on Sunday mornings and sang along when she knew the words.

Then, one day, Bonnie had a brilliant idea!

“If I can’t sing in the Tabernacle Choir, I will sing in the ward choir,” she announced to her family.

“You’re too little,” Susan said.

“Yeah, there aren’t any kids in the choir,” Alex said.

“Maybe in a few years,” Mom said. “I’m sure you’ll be very good.”

But her dad said, “You should ask Sister Hildebrandt, the choir director. Maybe she’ll let you join.”

On Sunday, Bonnie waited for Sister Hildebrandt to come out of the chapel. Bonnie walked up to her, gently tugged on her skirt, and looked up to the tall lady’s face.

“I want to sing in the ward choir.”

Sister Hildebrandt looked down. “What did you say, dear?”

“I want to sing in the ward choir.”

“Oh, that’s nice. I’m sure you will one day.”

That was not the answer Bonnie wanted to hear.

So she took a deep breath. She opened her mouth. And she began to sing one of her favorite hymns, in her loudest and best voice.

All the people in the foyer stopped talking and turned toward her. She could see that Alex and Susan were looking embarrassed and were hiding behind her parents, but she kept right on singing. Sister Hildebrandt straightened up very tall and listened. And then she smiled. In fact, when Bonnie finished all of the verses, everyone was smiling!

“I want to sing in the ward choir right now,” Bonnie said softly. “Please?”

Sister Hildebrandt leaned down and looked into her eyes. “We practice every Sunday at noon.”

“I can be there!” Bonnie said. Then she turned to her dad. “I can be there, right?”

Dad nodded.

Sister Hildebrandt smiled. “Good. Your dad can sing too. We need tenors.” She patted Bonnie’s shoulder. “Be on time.”

Bonnie, the newest member of the Glenwood Second Ward Choir, took her dad’s hand and walked happily out the door with her family, singing very softly along the way.

No one complained.

Here are some family home evening ideas from this month’s magazine. What other ideas can you come up with?

Cheesy Garlic Bread Notes

Good music can fill our souls with the Spirit. These musical notes will fill something else—your stomach! (Be sure to get an adult’s help.)

1. Roll out 2-inch (5-cm) wide strips from pre-packaged bread dough or your favorite bread recipe.

2. Fill the center of each strip with shredded cheese. Fold the dough so the edges touch, with the cheese inside. Pinch the edges of the dough together.

3. Twist the dough into music note shapes. Brush with melted butter and sprinkle with garlic powder.

4. Bake at 350°F (180°C) for 15 minutes, or adjust bake time according to your bread dough recipe.

Mood Music

Read “Bonnie’s Song” on page 4. The music we sing and listen to can affect our mood and our thoughts. Test out how good music can affect the spirit in your home.

1. Look through your music collection. How do the songs make you feel?

2. Make a “Sunday music” basket for CDs or a playlist on your computer for songs that help you feel close to the Savior.

3. Visit lds.org/youth/music and music.lds.org to stream or download free music to add to your collection. Or find sing-along videos at children.lds.org.

4. On Sundays listen only to your Sunday music. Try it for a month. Does Sunday feel different? With your family, talk about any changes you’ve noticed in your home.

A SPECIAL SABBATH

We choose to make Sunday stand out from the rest of the week. What can you do to keep the Sabbath day holy?

• Read the scriptures or other books about Jesus.
• Write letters or emails to far-away family or friends.
• Teach your parents what you learned in Primary.
• Help your family make dinner.
• Make a craft to give to a friend.
• What are some other ideas?

BONUS TREAT

Cut 2 peaches into small pieces. Mix with 2 cups raspberries, 2 tablespoons sugar, and 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Let sit for 20 minutes. Serve on vanilla ice cream.

MORE FHE IDEAS

Look for these pictures in the magazine to find the stories and articles they go with! (Find the page numbers below.)

IDEA 1: Read “The Bad Picture” and complete this month’s CTR Challenge as a family.

IDEA 2: Jesus is a friend to everyone. You can be too! Read the message from Elder Andersen and “Chameleons and New Friends.” Then think of someone who needs a friend, and do something kind for them as a family.

IDEA 3: Go on a walk to a quiet place like a nature trail or nearby park. Sit and read “Ralphie’s Amazing Find.” Bring your family night treat with you! Maybe some choc balls?
“I’ll stand for truth. I’ll stand for right. The Lord can depend on me” (Children’s Songbook, 162).

“Hey, look at this.” Jack pulled a folded piece of paper from his pocket. “I found it in a magazine this morning.” He unfolded it and held it out to Taran.

But Taran could see right off it wasn’t something he wanted to look at. He turned away. “I don’t want to look at that.”

Jack shrugged and put the paper back in his pocket. “Baby.”

Taran didn’t really care.

When Taran got home, he helped Mom make flatbread for dinner. He dragged a chair over to the counter, and Mom tied his apron.

“Mom,” he said, “when I was at Ian’s house, his friend tried to show me a picture of a person without clothes. I

How do I help EVERYONE feel welcome in Primary?

You can reach out to someone who feels alone or left behind.

Knowing someone’s name can make a difference.

Invite someone to sit by you.

Let’s open our arms and our hearts a little wider.

Help those who feel scared or shy. Think about them. Welcome them.

God loves all children. We are all His sons and daughters. We need to be thoughtful and kind. Some of our friends come to church by themselves. Some can’t get baptized until they grow up.

By Elder Neil L. Andersen
Of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles

Elder Neil L. Andersen and his wife, Kathy, visited the Democratic Republic of the Congo in Africa. They had a Church meeting outside under tents. Around the tents was a big fence. Elder Andersen could see children watching them from the other side of the fence. Kathy asked him, “Neil, do you think you might want to invite the children to come in?” Elder Andersen walked up to the man at the microphone. He asked the man to invite the children to come in and join them.

The children came running! They were all smiling and excited to be a part of the meeting.

Elder Andersen also told a story of a boy named Joshua who reached out to another child at church. When Joseph, a boy from Uganda, went to church for the first time, he didn’t have any family there to help him know where to go. Then the missionaries introduced him to Joshua.

Joshua told Joseph he would be his friend. He gave Joseph a songbook for Primary, and he sat next to him. Then the Primary class sang “I Am a Child of God” to Joseph. Everyone made Joseph feel very special, especially his new friend, Joshua. When they were older, Joshua and Joseph served as missionary companions!

These experiences reminded Elder Andersen that we all need to reach out to people around us who might feel left out or alone.
Happy to Help!

I like enchiladas, math, and the color mint green.

My parents are from Burundi, a country in East Africa. I was born in a refugee camp in Tanzania. Now I live in Utah, USA.

Amakuru! Jambo! Hello!
I’m Angelina!

A Special Name
I speak English and a language called Kirundi. My last name means “I will always be grateful for what I have.” I’m grateful that many of my relatives live nearby.
Family Fun
During the holidays my family and I go to Grandma’s house for dinner. We eat sambusas (fried dough with rice or meat inside). Then the parents tell stories, my uncle and cousin play drums, and my sister and I dance!

Helping Newcomers
I like helping at Primary too. Some of the kids in my branch speak Kirundi at home, and some speak Swahili. We have Primary in English. When new kids come to Primary who only speak Kirundi, I help by translating for them.

Helping Others
When I grow up, I want to be a nurse. But right now I can help by doing laundry, changing my baby sister’s diaper, and helping my sister Sophie with her homework.

SHOWING LOVE TO KIDS WHO ARE NEW
• If you don’t speak their language, find someone who can translate.
• Learn how to say hello. In Kirundi, say “Amakuru.” In Swahili, say “Jambo!”
• Invite them to come play with you.

Send us a heart with your story, photo, and permission. See page 39.
One day I learned in Primary about how faithful and righteous Nephi was. So I decided that I wanted to be like Nephi.

The next day I worked on making better choices. My brother hit me. I got mad. I wanted to hit him back, but I decided to be like Nephi. Instead of hitting my brother back, I just walked away. It helped to take my anger away.

Another time, my brother played with my airplane without asking, and I was worried that he was going to break it. So I asked him nicely to give it back, and he did!

It is hard to make the right choice sometimes, but I think of Jesus’s and Nephi’s examples. I also read my scriptures every night, and it helps me throughout the day to make righteous choices. I know that when we are faithful like Jesus and Nephi, it will make us happy.◆

This was the worst day ever! I got home from school and threw my bag down. Then I flopped into the chair and tried not to think about my best friend.

“Want some choc balls?” Mum held the bag out to me. “I just bought some.”

“I just bought some.”

“That’s when Mum figured out something was wrong. She knows I hardly ever pass up chocolate.

“Everything OK?”

I let out a long sigh. “Not really. I just found out Tim’s moving next week. We promised to keep in touch, and he’s coming back for spring break and all, but it won’t be the same. I won’t have anyone to play with after school!”

Mum patted my shoulder. “I’m so sorry. It’s never easy when friends move away.”

She glanced across the room at our dog. “You know, Ralphie looks like he could use a friend too. Why don’t you take him for a walk?”

“I dunno, Mum . . .” Taking Ralphie out was the last thing I felt like doing. But I couldn’t remember the last time I took him out, because I had been with Timmy so much. When I looked over at Ralphie, he looked sadder than I did. He whimpered as he ran over and stared up at me with big eyes. How could I say no to a cute face like that?

“I get the message.” I laughed as Ralphie’s tail started wagging when I put the lead on. He knocked me back a step and licked my face. Then he turned and ran out the door so fast that I fell over.

“Whoa!” I shouted as I tried to grab the lead. It slipped right through my hands.

“Wait up, Ralphie!” I got up and raced after him, but all I could see was his bushy tail bouncing through the dusty streets and then into the forest.

Branches whipped my face as I sprinted after Ralphie through the trees. We’d explored all through this forest, but never this part before. Where was he going?

“Ralphie!” I caught a glimpse of him as sunlight cut through the shadows. He had stopped and was waiting on a huge brown rock up ahead.

His happy woofing sounds told me he’d found something great. I raced over to see. I couldn’t believe my eyes as I looked around.

“Wow, this place is awesome! Good find, Ralphie!”

A huge white waterfall crashed over rocks. We crossed the stream below the waterfall and discovered rocks covered in moss.
This rotten day just took a turn for the better.

Bright flowers surrounded the waterfall, and birds flew over our heads.

We even found a sandy beach with deep pools of water. Perfect for fishing! The sand was as soft as candy floss. I took off my shoes and dug my toes into the sand.

The sun hung over the trees like a big golden ball. As I sat there, I felt its warmth hug me like a thick blanket. God’s love surrounded me, and I no longer felt alone. I didn’t ever want to leave.

Finally, after some more exploring, Ralphie and I headed home. Mum asked how the walk went.

“Ralphie found an amazing place! It has a great waterfall with beautiful flowers and everything.”

“That sounds wonderful,” Mum said. Then she grinned. “Want those choc balls now?”

“Yes, please!”

The next day Tim sat by me at lunch. “Sorry I couldn’t hang out yesterday. I had to pack.”

“That’s OK. I took Ralphie for a walk and found an awesome place where we can go fishing when you visit. Sound like a plan?”

“Deal!” he said as we knocked knuckles, something we always did when we made a promise.

Even though I may feel lonely sometimes, I know I’m never alone. God is always with me.
Row Together

"Teach me to know of the things that are right; Teach me, teach me to walk in the light" (Children's Songbook, 177).

As a young boy in Australia, I played a lot of sports. I ran track, and I also played rugby and cricket. I really liked team sports. In those sports, it wasn't just me playing but a group of people working together. One of the harder sports I tried was rowing.

My friend and I took out a boat called a “tub pair” on the river. I rowed on one side, and he rowed on the other. As we rowed, we tried to prove we were stronger than each other. The boat turned in one direction and then another. We zigzagged up the river. It was slow going. We didn't work together very well.

After that, we got a coach to help us. He told us what to do and how to help each other. We practiced the things he taught us. Eventually we became very good and won many races.

When I joined The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, I realized that I couldn't work just on my own. There was a lot I didn't know about the gospel. I needed to work with my bishop and my leaders. Most importantly, I needed to work with Heavenly Father to know what He wanted me to do. I studied the scriptures and prayed. I listened to my leaders. I practiced and worked hard—just like with rowing.

Heavenly Father guided me when I wasn't sure what to do. That helped me grow. God has taught me many things as I've tried to do what He asks. He's helped me to help others as well as myself. As we try to work with others and with God, we can do many great things. ◆

I help you, and you help me, and that’s the way that it’s supposed to be” (Children’s Songbook, 263).

Isabel set the table with special plates and napkins. The smell of her favorite rolls filled the house. But she didn’t feel hungry. She wished she could skip dinner and play with her two chameleons, Flicker and Blink, instead. Or at least play with Flicker. Blink wouldn’t come out from under the leaves in her cage. She was shy.

Isabel felt shy today too. She’d never met anyone from Russia, and now three people from Russia were coming to dinner! What if she couldn’t understand them? Isabel wished she could hide like Blink.

Isabel’s older sister, Amelia, set out the cups. “Are you excited to meet my friend Natalia?” Amelia asked.

“No,” said Isabel. “How am I going to talk to her?”

Amelia raised her eyebrows. “The same way you talk to me.”

“But Natalia speaks Russian.”

“Natalia speaks our language too,” said Amelia. “So does her dad. Her mom only knows a few words, but she’s learning.”

Isabel decided she would stay away from Natalia’s mom.

The doorbell rang, and Amelia ran to answer it. Isabel could see Natalia and her parents waiting on the porch. Natalia’s dad held a bowl of salad. Her mom had a big, friendly smile.

Isabel spent dinner hunched in her seat so only her head poked over the edge of the table. She didn’t know what to say, so she didn’t say anything.

Natalia’s mom didn’t say anything either, but she smiled and nodded. Sometimes Natalia translated for her.

After dinner Isabel slipped away and wandered over to Flicker and Blink’s cage. To her surprise, Natalia and her mom followed. Inside the cage, Blink scuttled under her leaf again.

“Can I see?” said Natalia, pointing to the cage. Isabel nodded. She reached into the cage and Flicker climbed onto her hand. She handed him to Natalia.

Flicker licked Natalia’s hand. Isabel laughed. So did Natalia’s mom.

Isabel reached in the cage again, but Blink wouldn’t come out. “Come on, Blink,” Isabel said. “You’re missing all the fun.”

Natalia’s mom said something to Natalia in Russian. “She wants to help you get the lizard,” Natalia said to Isabel.

Natalia’s mom placed her hand out flat. It looked like she was asking Isabel to move her hand next to Blink’s hiding spot. Isabel thought about how Blink was missing out by hiding.

I’m not going to be like Blink, Isabel thought. She looked at Natalia’s mom and then held out her hand. Natalia’s mom placed a drop of water and some of Blink’s food on Isabel’s hand.

Blink turned her big eyes toward the food. Her tiny green leg stretched onto Isabel’s open palm. “Good,” said Natalia’s mom. Blink’s tail curled in a loop, and her tiny feet tickled Isabel’s arm.

When it was time for Natalia’s family to go home, Natalia’s mom waved at Isabel and smiled. “Poka,” she said.

“That’s Russian for ‘bye,’” whispered Amelia.

It didn’t matter if Natalia’s family didn’t speak the same language she did. They could still understand each other. And maybe she could learn some Russian for the next time they came to dinner.

Isabel grinned and waved back at Natalia’s mom.

“Poka!”

I try to pray to Heavenly Father for anyone who is sad that they will be happy.

At school we did state reports. My friend reported on Utah and said that it was first settled by Mormons. I said I was a Mormon and shared my beliefs with my friends at school, which made me happy!

I was the fastest runner in my class when we were timed for the mile run. I noticed one girl who was having a hard time running, so as soon as I finished, I cheered her on. It made me feel good inside to encourage her.

To make the Sabbath day special, we make scripture scenes from our toys. We made Moses standing on Mount Sinai while the Israelites worshipped a golden calf.

Filling the World with Love  This year we’re filling our map of the world with your loving hearts. Find out how to send us your heart on page 15!
After the gospel was restored, 12 Apostles were called to be special witnesses of Jesus Christ to the world. Two Apostles, Heber C. Kimball and Brigham Young, were called to England. They had very little money, but every time Elder Young opened his trunk, he always found enough for their journey. After they got to England, a local minister sent a constable to arrest Elder Woodruff for preaching. Elder Woodruff explained that he had a license to preach and invited the constable to stay. The constable ended up getting baptized! The minister sent two clerks to spy on Elder Woodruff. They got baptized too!

It’s the last Saturday before school starts, and everyone has an idea about the best way to spend it.

Dad just wants to relax with a fishing pole and doesn’t care if he catches anything.

Mom wants to spend the day with a good book.

Mandy wants to spend her time with her sketchbook, drawing birds.

Matt wants to go swimming to try out his new snorkel.

Good thing the Coopers know how to compromise and just have fun together.

I was finally going to do something about Olivia.
“But behold I say unto you, love your enemies, bless them that curse you” (3 Nephi 12:44).

If there’s one thing I don’t like, it’s bullies.

If there’s one word I don’t like, it’s ugly.

If there’s one thing I don’t like doing, it’s crying.

And if there’s one person I don’t like, it’s Olivia. She’s a bully. She calls me “ugly,” and that makes me cry. Plus, she picks on my friends. She makes fun of my clothes. And her name even sounds like olives—the one thing I don’t like on pizza.

I had to do something about Olivia. So I made a plan. I would tell her what I really thought. I would hurt her back.

All morning I practiced my speech in my head. I could imagine the scene exactly. She’d walk past me at recess and say something rude. Then I’d step in front of her and put my hands on my hips. She would suddenly look very small.

“Olivia,” I’d say, “you think you’re so much better than me, but you’re not. I’m four months older than you. I get better grades in reading than you. And I’m nicer to people than you.” Everyone on the playground would stare at us. They would see how cool I was. They would see how awful Olivia was. Olivia would beg me to forgive her, or maybe she’d just run away and cry.

I liked both ideas.

At morning recess I was ready. Olivia walked past me just like I knew she would. “Don’t you know half the people at school think you’re ugly?” Olivia said to me.

I wanted to give my speech, but now it just sounded silly. “Well, you’re uglier,” I finally said.

Olivia just laughed. “Whatever.”

I couldn’t say anything else, so I just walked to the bathroom with my head held high. But once no one could see me, I cried and cried and cried.

When I looked at my face in the mirror, it was splotchy and red. Maybe Olivia was right. Maybe I was ugly.

I felt ugly on the inside too. What had happened to my plan? This was no good! I had tried being mean, and it only made me feel worse.

When the bell rang, I washed my face so no one would see how much I cried. The splotches went away. The bad feeling didn’t.

I sat in class and tried to think of a new plan. But I was stumped. If being mean didn’t work, what would?
At lunch I ate as fast as I could and then hurried outside to hide from Olivia. I sat by the wall and tried to squeeze all of me, even my shoes, inside its shadow.

When Olivia came outside, she didn’t notice me. She just strutted to the corner of the playground. I watched her play with a small rubber ball. She bounced and caught, bounced and caught, bounced and... didn’t catch. A boy on the playground caught it first.

“Give it back,” I heard Olivia tell the boy.
“No way, Ugly Face. I caught it,” the boy said.
“But it’s mine,” she said.

I felt like I should help her. Help Olivia? I thought. Help the bully who calls me “ugly” and makes me cry?

But Olivia was being bullied now. I knew how bad that felt. So I stepped out of the shadow and marched over to the boy.

“No.” He laughed and waved it in front of Olivia’s face. Then he threw it as hard as he could and ran away. “See ya, losers!” he called over his shoulder.

He didn’t see where the ball went. He didn’t care. But I did. I saw it hit the basketball hoop. I saw it bounce twice and land in the grass. So I found it and took it to Olivia.

When I got close, I could see there were tears on her face. If there’s one thing I didn’t know Olivia could do, it’s cry.

I pretended I didn’t notice, though, so she wouldn’t feel embarrassed. “Here you go.”

Olivia took the ball. “Thank you,” she said. If there’s one thing I didn’t know Olivia could say, it’s “thank you.”

“You’re welcome.” If there’s one thing I didn’t know I could do, it’s feel good for being kind to Olivia.
Pudding Pops

1. Make your favorite instant pudding

2. Pour pudding into an ice-cube tray or small cups

3. Put craft sticks in

4. Put in freezer for several hours

Tips: You could also freeze smoothies, juice, yogurt, or lemonade! If the craft stick can’t stand up on its own, cover the cups in plastic wrap and poke the stick through the center.

Picture Perfect

Here’s something else you can do with craft sticks! Glue them together to make a frame for a special photo. Be creative! Try layering the sticks and using different shapes and patterns. When the frame has dried, decorate however you’d like. Then glue in the photo.

This is the coolest present ever!

By Jane McBride
(Based on a true story)

Andrew opens his last birthday present . . .

Sweet!
Let’s put it together.

Dad said I have to wait for him to help.

Whatever. We can do it by ourselves.

That doesn’t really feel right . . . But I REALLY want to see it take off.

OK, it’s pretty easy. I mean, I’m 10 now. And 10-year-olds can do basically anything.

Three, two, one . . .

BLAST OFF!

But then . . .

Oh no! That’s Mr. Warner’s car!

We have to tell him!

No way! He’ll be so mad when he sees this!

I’m outta here!

I wish I could run away too.
But I know that’s not right.

Andrew runs inside to tell Mom what happened. She calls the fire department.
I made a mistake, and I want to fix it. I mean, I'm 10 now. And I can do hard things. Especially when I listen to the Holy Ghost!

The seats are burned pretty bad. But it looks like the rest of the car is OK.

I'm so sorry, I'll pay to fix your car.

Thanks for being honest and for sticking around. I know it wasn't easy to tell me.

I'll pay to fix your car.

We can pay right now, and you can work to pay us back.

OK. Thanks for helping me. I'll work hard and pay it back.

I made a mistake, and I want to fix it. I mean, I'm 10 now. And I can do hard things. Especially when I listen to the Holy Ghost!
Sister Sheldon is the greatest Primary president ever! She is energetic and funny. When she stands up to do sharing time, we all say, “It’s Sheldon sharing time” with jazz hands and smiles. She loves it!

Early in 2015 Sister Sheldon found out that she had cancer again, for the fifth time! She explained to all of us what cancer is and what it does. She told us that she might miss church sometimes and she would probably lose her hair. She asked us to fast and pray to help make the cancer go away.

During this time, our Primary did the helping hands challenge, where we cut out paper hands and wrote on them an act of service we did. Sister Ashby, in the Primary presidency, had the idea to make a helping hands quilt for Sister Sheldon. We all wanted her to know that we love her, so the whole Primary traced hands and hearts, and the activity day girls used them to make a quilt. We sewed, ironed, and poured all of our love into it. Some of us even tied strings on our fingers to remember Sister Sheldon.

We gave the quilt to Sister Sheldon. She took it to her chemotherapy sessions and felt our love.

The best part was when Sister Sheldon bore her testimony to the entire Primary. She told us how special we were to her and that she loved us. She knew we were a big part of why she made it through chemo again. Even though I was scared that she might not make it, I just knew she would. Today Sister Sheldon is cancer free!
Building a Temple

By Amie Jane Leavitt

The walls, ceilings, and woodwork have to be carefully sanded and dusted, caulked, and spackled. Once the walls and wood are perfectly smooth, everything can be painted. Some walls are painted in a solid color. Then stencils are taped on so gold leaf and different colors can be painted in beautiful patterns. On other walls, artists paint murals. In some temples, these murals are actually scanned from other temple walls, printed onto big sheets, and hung as wallpaper!

For Parents of Little Ones

Here are some tips:

■ It’s OK for you to voice the apology the first few times. “She’s sorry she made you sad. Next time, she will ask you before playing with your toy.” Your little one may be afraid to admit wrongdoing because she thinks you’ll be mad. You can model the importance of apologizing until she feels safer saying the words herself.

■ Ask, “What can you do to make it better?” If your child can’t think of ways to right his mistake, offer one or two ideas and help him follow through.

■ When you’ve slipped up and hurt feelings, apologize to your children with the same honesty and humility you want them to show. When you need to, ask for Heavenly Father’s forgiveness in family prayer. With time, your example of mending relationships will prepare your little ones to say they’re sorry—and mean it!

Help your child feel empathy: “Oh no. Your brother is crying. Why do you think he’s sad?”

“No hitting! Now say you’re sorry.”

But what if your child doesn’t feel sorry? How can you help your child learn to apologize sincerely and understand how to repent?

My favorite tree is as tall as the sky.

My favorite tree is wider than a hug.

My favorite tree has branches that blow in the breeze
And leaves that flutter to the ground.

My favorite tree started as a tiny seed.

My favorite tree grew as tall as me.

My favorite tree gives me shade in the summer
And a place to say my prayers.
Calvin Says Sorry

By Jennifer Maddy

Josh showed his car. It was really cool! When Josh left the table, Calvin put the car in his pocket. Josh came back and frowned. “Where’s my car?” Calvin was quiet. The car felt heavy in Calvin’s pocket. At recess, Calvin didn’t feel like playing. He felt bad for taking the car. Calvin gave the car to Josh. “I’m sorry I took it,” Calvin said. “That’s OK. Do you want to come to my house and play cars?” Calvin smiled. “Sure!”

Jesus taught His disciples to forgive. He told them that Heavenly Father would forgive their sins if they forgave others.

Once Peter asked Jesus how many times he should forgive someone who did something wrong. “Seven times?” Peter guessed.

“Seventy times seven,” Jesus said.
Jesus also forgave people who didn’t know they were doing something wrong. He asked Heavenly Father to forgive the men who crucified Him. They didn’t know they were hurting the Son of God.

Jesus forgave people who felt sorry about their sins. When He forgave one woman, she felt so grateful that she washed His feet with her tears.
Jesus forgives people because He loves them. I can try to be like Jesus by forgiving others too!

Ashley looked in the pet store window.

“Which kitten would you like?” Mom asked.

Ashley saw black kittens and striped kittens. Then she saw a gray kitten behind the others. He was so small. Ashley knew which one she wanted.

Mom and Ashley brought the gray kitten home. “What will you name him?” Mom asked.

Ashley watched him run.

“He’s so fast,” she said. “I’ll call him Speedy.”

Ashley took good care of Speedy. She gave him food and played with him every day.

Speedy liked to run outside. He chased bugs. He jumped in the grass.
One day Ashley went to the backyard. “Speedy!” she called. Speedy did not come. “Speedy!” she called louder. Speedy still did not come.

“Oh no! Speedy is lost,” Ashley said. She told Mom.

Mom and Ashley walked all around looking for Speedy. But they couldn’t find him.

Ashley started to cry. “I’m worried about Speedy.”

“Speedy will be OK,” said Mom. “Can we say a prayer?” Ashley asked.

“Yes,” Mom said. “That’s a good idea.”

Ashley prayed for Heavenly Father to keep Speedy safe.

The next day Ashley still felt sad. Dad gave Ashley a hug.

“Maybe Speedy will be here when we get home from church.”

When the family got out of the car in the church parking lot, Ashley heard a soft sound. Meow, meow, meow.

Ashley’s eyes got big. “Speedy!” she called. He was high up in a tree by the car. Dad got Speedy down. Ashley held her kitten tight. “I’m so glad you are safe!”
