

Our Book of Mormon Goal

By Mattea W., age 11, Idaho, USA

Last Christmas, my mom's whole family came to our house.

We all wrote down things that we were going to give Christ for the next year. Then we went around and said what we had decided to give.

My grandma said she was going to read the Book of Mormon in four months. My grandma has not gone to church since she was nine and has only read parts of the Bible. We were all surprised. She said she wanted to read it because all of her kids and most of her grandkids had read it. She wanted to know why it was so important to us.

All of my aunts, uncles, and most of my cousins decided to read the Book of Mormon with her. I wasn't sure if she was going to do it, but she is now starting the book of Alma. She really likes it. I feel happy when I read the Book of Mormon and know that my grandma is reading it as well. ●
