“SMALL ACTS OF FAITH ARE REQUIRED TO IGNITE GOD’S PROMISES.”

Elder Dale G. Renlund of the Quorum of the Twelve Apostles, “Abound with Blessings,” Ensign or Liahona, May 2019, 71; emphasis added.

FIND THE LIGHT AGAIN

Sister Sharon Eubank gave five suggestions for when “you feel that the beacon of your testimony is sputtering and darkness is closing in”:

1. Take courage.
2. Keep your promises to God.
3. Ask your questions.
4. Patiently melt stone to glass.
5. Turn to Jesus Christ, who loves you still.

HOME-CENTERED, CHURCH SUPPORTED SANCTUARIES

Many of our leaders spoke about strengthening our homes, particularly with the new emphasis on home-centered, Church-supported gospel study. You can learn more about:

- Inviting the Spirit more frequently into your home (see Henry B. Eyring, “A Home

Where the Spirit of the Lord Dwells,” Ensign or Liahona, May 2019, 22).

- Making your home the ultimate missionary training center, family history center, and temple preparation class (see David A. Bednar, “Prepared to Obtain Every Needful Thing,” Ensign or Liahona, May 2019, 101).
- Using curriculum and time with your family to help “deepen our conversion and help us become more like Jesus Christ” (see Ronald A. Rasband, “Build a Fortress of Spirituality and Protection,” Ensign or Liahona, May 2019, 107).

SERVING UP GENERAL CONFERENCE FOR HOME EVENING

I kept getting the feeling that I should try using conference talks for family home evening lessons. At first I resisted. My kids are young, the talks are hard for them to understand, and I wasn't sure there would be any kid-friendly subjects. But I knew I had to at least try.

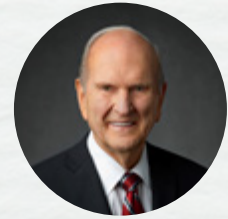

Using general conference talks has not only completely transformed our family home evenings for my children, but we've had some great gospel discussions. Interspersed within total chaos, there have been small miraculous moments of family bliss.

HOME, A HEAVENLY PLACE

"We hope and pray that each member's home will become a true sanctuary of faith, where the Spirit of the Lord may dwell.

Despite contention all around us, one's home can become a heavenly place, where study, prayer, and faith can be merged with love."

President Russell M. Nelson, "Closing Remarks," Ensign or Liahona, May 2019, 111; emphasis added.
