

ALORA D.

19, TENNESSEE, USA

MY DAD'S IN THE U.S. military, so we moved around a lot growing up. It was hard to be outgoing and make friends, and I thought being shy was my whole personality, like I was a painting with only one color.

Painting has helped me realize that I'm actually a very colorful person! I'm more reserved than other people, but there are so many other layers and pieces to my personality, like a full-color painting. Sometimes people are surprised by how colorful my paintings are, and I just tell them, "You need to get to know me!"

I'm still figuring out who I am and adding pieces to myself. In fact, I recently sang in the November 2020 Young Women Face to Face event. I know that when I do the simple things like read my scriptures and pray, it helps me learn about who I am and who Heavenly Father wants me to become.

Share your story and read stories from other youth at the @StrivetoBe Instagram or post using #StrivetoBe.